

CHCSS00088 Induction Skill Set

New Futures Training provides nationally accredited vocational training and employment support for people from migrant, refugee and asylum seeker background.

Course overview

This skill set ideal for people entering the health and community services sector. It provides you with the set of skills to support the induction of new workers into a variety of roles. This short course will support the rapid skilling of workers with quality, industry-endorsed training and accreditation as well as offering students a pathway to full qualifications.

How will skill sets work together with full qualifications?

Skill sets will complement and not replace full qualifications.

It will benefit students by giving them:

- training pathways to full qualifications
- specific skills and general capabilities
- more career opportunities within their workplace and between employers.

In the immediate term, skill sets are a means of re-skilling that can help Victorians respond to a rapidly changing post-COVID-19 economy and job market.
